INDIA AND UNITED NATIONS A 75-YEAR-OLD ALLIANCE

This photo album will cover India's engagement with the United Nations over the years as an active member of its mission and objective. India's deepening engagement with the United Nations is based on its steadfast commitment to multilateralism and dialogue as the key for achieving shared goals and addressing common challenges faced by the global community. India was among the select members of the United Nations that signed the Declaration by United Nations at Washington on 1 January 1942. India also participated in the historic UN Conference of International Organization at San Francisco from 25 April to 26 June 1945.

As a founding member of the United Nations, India strongly supports the purposes and principles of the UN and has made significant contributions to implementing the goals of the Charter, and the evolution of the UN's specialized programmes and agencies. India strongly believes that the United Nations and the norms of international relations that it has fostered remain the most efficacious means for tackling today's global challenges. Independent India viewed its membership at the United Nations as an important guarantee for maintaining international peace and security.

We thank the United Nations Photo Library for assisting us and providing photos which expedited the project and its objective. This album was prepared by student members of Jindal Society of International Law: Ayman Khan, Arjan Chonker, Sai Akshantala and President and Co-Founder, Ankit Malhotra.

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the first document in history to set up an international standard of rights for all mankind, was approved last fall by the U.N. General Assembly in Paris. But the Declaration at present is simply a standard for the nations to achieve by individual action, it is not binding. U.N., however, is already taking the first steps to write the Declaration into international law. The Commission on Human Rights is now shaping up the concrete articles of an international Convention on human rights which, when finished, and approved by the General Assembly, will be the world's first binding instrument to provide for the protection of the rights of individuals, everywhere under international law.
